Breve descrizione

The EU-funded Jean Monnet Module PRO2-EUCITI consists of teaching, research, and active outreach activities structured around the idea of Union citizenship that can guarantee effectiveness to the rights deriving from that status to foster the respect and promotion of EU democracy and shared values throughout the continuing path of integration. The project envisages the implementation of a set of four teaching activities organised by the Department of Law of the University of Verona and tailor-made according to the respective target groups: (i) students from secondary schools, (ii) undergraduate students in legal sciences at (a) bachelor's degree level and (b) single-cycle master's degree level, and (iii) legal practitioners and professionals. These teaching courses are delivered by a teaching staff with diverse professional backgrounds and areas of expertise to bring EU citizenship closer to the chosen target groups on the basis of different methodologies and perspectives of implementation of the rights conferred by that status. The teaching activities are complemented by events planned as occasions of broader debate and awareness raising on various issues connected to EU citizenship, also differentiated in the form of public initiatives or academic roundtables in consideration of the target audiences. The research carried out during the whole project lifetime is instrumental to both the teaching activities and events, considering that EU citizenship is an evolving legal concept that spurs innovative and multidisciplinary research pathways. The project also aims to foster dialogue between academia and society through the involvement of differentiated stakeholders in implementing the proposed activities, as well as to deepen the knowledge of the EU agenda on citizenship rights.
